MOLTEN LAVA ENGULFS TOWNS

BIG PAIGE SEDAN STOLEN ON SUNDAY NIGHT FROM GARAGE

Machine Owned by Miss Harriet Chamberlain is Missed Monday Morning

Police Searching for Car Taken from Home Garage

A big Paige Sedan, owned by Miss Harriet Chamberlain, 234 South Ninth street, general manager of the Marinella company, was stolen from the residence garage some time between 7:30 and 12 o'clock Sunday night, it was learned Tuesday.

The fact that the machine was stolen was not learned until Monday, Miss Chamberlain having been out of the city. It was first noticed that the car was missing when Bert Maurer son of D. A. A. Maurer, drove his machine in the garage at the same residence about 12 o'clock Sunday night. He had not become suspicious that the car was stolen, thinking that it was in charge of Miss Chamberlain.

The sedan, it was learned, had been used Sunday afternoon and driven to the garage at 7:30 in the evening, establishing the theory that the machine was stolen between that time and 12 o'clock, when Mr. Maurer drove in.

Police have not been able to find trace of the machine up until noon Tuesday.

PIONEERS OF OREGON TRAIL ARE HONORED IN HARDING ADDRESS

President Declares Nation Owed Debt of Gratitude to Men Who Opened up Northwest

PARTY STOPS OVER AT MEACHAM FOR OREGON TRAIL CELEBRATION

Strenuous Program Prepared for Executive and His Party

MEACHAM, Oregon — President Harding stopped here Tuesday on his western trip to pay homage to the memory of the sturdy pioneers who founded Oregon and saved to the nation the great northwest.

Speaking at exercises commemorating the eightieth anniversary of the blazing of the Oregon Trail, the Executive declared the American people owe to those pioneers a debt of gratitude which they never can repay. Their victory, he asserted, proclaimed the strength of resolute purpose to do for themselves, not asking the government to do, but for government only to sanction or permit.

"We may reasonably do more today," he said, "than rejoice in possession of the imperial domain which they revealed, and the life they made possible to the virile, aspiring and confident Northwest. I find new assurances in recalling the heroism, the resolution, the will to conquer of these pioneers."

"I wish I might more effectively visualize them. Not very long ago I saw the covered wagon in the moving picture. I sat entranced. There was more than the picturesque, more than sorrow and discouragement, more than appealing characters and enthralling heroism. There was more than the revelation of the irresolute, who failed in fitness to survive, more than tragedy and comedy in their inseparable blend. There was more than the scouts who surpassed our fancies, more than nature's relentless barriers revealed. Everywhere a flame was the soul of unalterable purpose and the commanding sternness of elemental greatness. Still more, there was determination to do themselves, not asking the government to do, but for government only to sanction or permit."

"Much the same spirit was revealed in the making of the Central West where the determined pioneers built in the confidence which they had in themselves. They battled with nature and every obstacle which they encountered, heroes perished without fame's acclaim, and they conquered and wrote big their part in the making of the greater Republic. Their victory proclaimed the strength of resolute purpose, and the human confidence in itself and eager to achieve on its own account."

"The lesson can not fail to impress itself. In this test of self-reliant citizenship there came the rugged, militant, wholesome West; greater things were wrought, larger accomplishments were recorded, greater victory was won in this wholesome, inspiring individualism than will ever attend paternalism or government assumption of the tasks which are the natural inheritance of the builders who may better serve for themselves. Government may well provide opportunity, but the worth-while accomplishment is the privilege and the duty of men."

TWO MEN IN FORD NARROWLY ESCAPE DEATH IN WRECK

Albert Bruhing Injured and Rudolph Rand Bruised in Third Street Smash

CAR DOUBLES UP UNDER IMPACT IN STRIKING POLE

Accident Occurs at Bend in Third Street, Near Car Station

FIVE minutes after they had rented a machine at the Rent-A-Ford establishment on North Third street, Albert Bruhing, 1229 West avenue south, and Rudolph Rand, 1502 Adams street, narrowly escaped death or serious injury when proceeding north on Third street. At the bend near the car station, the car ran over the curb, snapped off a trolley wire pole a foot above the ground, folded up under the impact, rolled over, and stopped.

Stunned and jarred from the sudden jolt of the wreck, both men crawled out from under the wreckage apparently unscathed for the moment. When they came to their senses and realized what had happened, Bruhing complained of an injured wrist and an injured finger, which possibly was broken. Rand escaped with nothing more than bruises about his body, it was learned.

The men told the police that they had gone to the Rent-A-Ford establishment at 7:45 and rented the machine. The accident occurred when they had gone but a few blocks from the place of beginning. They claimed they were traveling at a rate of about 15 miles an hour, but claims of eye witnesses, and the fact that a huge pole was snapped, would indicate a greater rate of speed. Neither of the men had been drinking, police said.

REFUTE WAR STORIES OF GERMAN SABOTAGE ON LINER LEVIATHAN

Engineers Declare Reports Germans Tried to Cripple Big Steamer are False

MEANS RE-WRITING OF PART OF OFFICIAL HISTORY OF THE WAR

Damage Found When Ship is Taken Over Result of Accident

NEW YORK.—By The Associated Press.—Announcement Tuesday by engineers who re-conditioned the Leviathan that war-time tales of German attempts to cripple the liner are false, has left the shipping board in a quandary as to what to do with $16,000 worth of elaborate souvenir booklets, containing a detailed account of the alleged sabotage, which were to have been distributed tomorrow on the ship's first voyage as an American liner.

A. H. Gibbs of Gibbs Brothers, engineers who prepared the giant liner for service as an American passenger vessel, said that damage to the vessel, originally supposed to have been the result of German sabotage, had been found to have been the result of an accident in docking the vessel on her last trip to this country under the German flag in 1914.

Must Re-Write History

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Part of the official history of the world war will have to be re-written if a report brought back to Washington by Representative Madden of Illinois, a guest on the trial trip of the liner Leviathan should turn out to be true.

Mr. Madden said that during the voyage he had been informed "on good authority" that the story of the crippling of the liner's machinery by her German crew when she was seized by the United States was all a myth.

Department of justice records describe extensive damage to the engines of the ship, which then was the Vaterland, and attributed to the German seamen, while the files of the navy department contain photographs of gaping holes in her boilers and of shattered mechanism found when the American naval forces took charge.

FINANCIAL CRISIS CONFRONTS HIGHER SCHOOLS AS SESSION ENDS WITHOUT VOTING FUNDS

Institutions Will Operate Under Continuing Appropriations but Hardship will Result; Special Session May be Necessary; Senate Votes Funds to Fight Cattle Tuberculosis

MADISON, Wis.—By The Associated Press.—The University of Wisconsin and the nine state normal schools face a financial crisis following the death in the senate Monday night of their appropriation bills aggregating nearly $14,000,000.

Little consideration on the floor was given Wisconsin's higher educational institutions by a legislature which refused to authorize a dollar for their support unless the money was raised by surtaxes on incomes. After the senate refused, 14 to 11 and 13 to 12, to submit to the surtax financing theory as advanced by the assembly the session finished its work in a deadlock.

Extend Occupied Area

DUESSELDORF.—By The Associated Press.—French troops Monday occupied the town of Westhofen, northeast of Hagen, according to German sources, arresting the burgomaster, stationmaster, postmaster and other city officials.

A detachment of 250 troops, the Germans report, occupied the city hall and took charge of the railroad station.

Westhofen is the easternmost point in this region under French occupation. The move into that town is understood to be a reprisal for the persistent sniping that had been going on from the unoccupied territory, against the French troops on the outer fringe.

LAKE CITY, Fla.—Thomas Walter Higginbotham, former convict whipping boss of the Putnam Lumber company, told the jury here Tuesday in his trial for the murder of Martin Tabert of North Dakota, "that it was my duty to whip Tabert." He said he gave Tabert eight lashes. The state contends Tabert died from an excessive whipping administered by Higginbotham, state witnesses testifying 50 to 110 lashes were applied.

PUT BRITISH SHIPPING AHEAD OF BOOZE PARLIAMENT TOLD

LONDON.—Prime Minister Baldwin in the house of commons Monday said he had received no official information regarding the intention of the United States to seize ships and arrest the captains. He declared he hoped a committee composed of foreign office legal experts soon would make recommendations which would enable the British government to determine its attitude. A labor member said: "Isn't it time for the government to declare the interests of British shipping more important than the alcoholic tastes of passengers?"

RESCUED A BOY BUT LOST SPECS

"Boots" Bugshie, one of the life guards at Camp Youngbear, the boy scout camp near Hunter's Bridge, is the hero of many rescues, but not all have proved so costly.

"Boots" was near the water's edge at the camp Sunday, keeping a watchful eye on a youngster in a boat, who fell at once the young lifeguard plunged overboard. The lad was able to swim, but he floundered around a lot and puffed pretty hard, so "Boots" plunged in and pulled him safely to shore, not stopping to remove his clothing, or even his horn-rimmed spectacles.

As a result, boots is now out the price of a perfectly good pair of specs which slipped off his nose while effecting the rescue.

They had motored to the Dells for their honeymoon and just after nine o'clock they had motored to the Lower Dells to go swimming. Guests at the Ravenswood hotel saw them go down and divers were sought who searched for the bodies. At 2 o'clock the bodies had not been recovered.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Larson were members of well-known families in Kenosha.

SCHOOL KEEPS OPEN

President F. A. Cotton of the La Crosse State Normal school, Tuesday expressed regret when informed of the action of the senate in killing the normal appropriation bill.

"The normal school here will continue in operation despite the action of the senate," under a continuing appropriation," said Mr. Cotton.

"However, no money has been provided for repairs or improvements. Last year the state board of education sent to La Crosse three special teachers. Unless funds are provided to pay their salaries, we will lose these teachers."

would be without money for expansion, which the appropriation bill allowed. A later meeting of the board will determine he said one the course to be followed.

The University of Wisconsin is in a better financial position than the normal schools, because of a balance available for expenditures for operation. Its chief difficulty, "according to officers, will be caused by inability to expend any money for capital and maintenance."

It is considered likely that Governor Blaine will call in university and normal school officials and the attorney general to determine legal questions that may stand in the way of expenditures from funds now available for the institutions.

The senate and assembly will continue to meet from time to time for ten days to give the governor an opportunity to study and sign bills.

Birge Not Worried

President E. A. Birge of the University of Wisconsin is not worried over the failure of the recent legislature to agree on and pass an appropriation measure to finance the institution for the next biennium.

Although failure to provide for the university is without precedent in Wisconsin legislative annals, President Birge does not believe that inability of the two houses to get together on the proposition will result in any detriment to the university or its program for the next two years. He is of the opinion that the legislature will reconvene in special session and pass an adequate appropriation measure before the university is inconvenienced by lack of funds.

Whether or not the bill should be stripped of the provision which specifies

LEGISLATURE COSTS STATE QUARTER OF A MILLION DOLLARS

Expenditures Will Mount to that Sum by Time of Sine Die
Adjournment

SALARIES, MILEAGE, PRINTING,
BIGGEST ITEMS OF EXPENSE

Cost of Present Session About
Same as Two Years Ago

MADISON, Wis.—By The Associated Press.—Before it finally adjourns the fifty-sixth session of the Wisconsin legislature will have cost the state more than a quarter of a million dollars, the secretary of state's office estimates. Expenditures up to July 1 amounted to $213,598.44, with sine die adjournment still two weeks away. Costs of the session are largely incurred through payment of salaries to members, salary payment to employees and printing. The six months of adjournment have brought larger expenditures because of continued printing expenses and salary expenses.

Tabulations by the secretary of state show that senators received $16,600 in salaries and $1,050.70 in mileage, making a total expense incurred by members of $17,650.70. In the assembly, salaries amounted to $50,500, with mileage totaling $8,053.50, making a total of $58,553.50. Up to July 1, the senate chief clerk's department had spent $20,328, and the sergeant-at-arms' department $12,055. The assembly chief clerk spent $28,222 and the sergeant-at-arms $15,800.50.

Printing has cost $56,230.37 to the present time, with postage, supplies and miscellaneous $7,702.41. The finance committee has spent $2,635.60, the visiting committee $1,013.93, the assembly contingent committee $246 and the senate committee $234.

Expenses of the session are shown by the secretary of state to be approximately the same as those incurred by the 1921 session when $264,370 was expended during the entire session, in addition to $8,938 for the special session of 1922.

Previous legislatures have ranged around $200,000 in their expenses.

Salaries to members amounted to $500 for their two year terms, an amount which legislators agree is not sufficient to support them during their stay here. An attempt is to be made at the next general election to increase this amount to $1,500 for the biennium, as more commensurate with the importance of the position. Special sessions cost the state only for mileage, expenses of employees and printing. There are no added salaries for members.

The Manly Art

WELL, whatever happens at Shelby, Montana, on the Fourth, it is evident that Mr. Jack Kearns and Mr. Jack Dempsey will not be the poorer for their trip west. As a sporting event the big fight looks very much like a Shylockian hold-up. Perhaps it is good business to hold out for the pound of flesh, as Kearns has done, but one suspects that most of the sport fans by whose adulation Mr. Kearns and Mr. Dempsey have been raised to the pinnacle of $300,000 purses would consider $200,000 ample pay to the pair of Jacks for whatever effort may be required in doing their stuff against Gibbons. So it is possible they may question the sportsmanship which threatened to walk out of the fight unless $100,000 more was paid down on the nail.

It is true, perhaps, that it would be a bad precedent for Mr. Kearns to permit promoters to come through with only two-thirds of the guaranteed emolument and have their fight anyway. But it may be suggested that this off-again-on-again stuff is also a bad precedent, and that the Shelby difficulties may make future fights for his man considerably harder to arrange. Which, at a time that there is a crop of well-press-agented heavies of not too formidable caliber, is likely to interfere somewhat with the garnering of much easy money. We will let Mr. Kearns take, without charge, our morocco copy of the fable about the goose that laid the golden eggs. The instruction contained therein might help him in getting future business.

Significant, also, is the contemporary dispatch from New York which notes that a leading promoter has slammed a limit considerably lower than the zenith upon purses and ticket prices for future combats. He did it not from eleemosynary motives, but because of two galling experiences recently, in which he discovered that the tariff was more than the traffic would bear. Be it noted, moreover, that these two lessons were learned in connection with bouts in which popular champions staked their titles. Mr. Dempsey is of course the big star in the firmament, but even the biggest star doesn't twinkle so brightly under a cloud.

Interest and sympathy in the Shelby bout has switched. Nobody now is half as much interested in what happens to Dempsey or Gibbons as in what happens to the promoters. The public is always on the side of the under dog.

We'll make a wager that the next time Mr. Dempsey fights he'll scrap for a lot less than a $300,000 guarantee.

Rag Chewing

DO YOU talk entertainingly? When you begin speaking, do the others "hush up" and listen with interest? Ed Howe, Kansas country town philosopher, thinks the only reason any one ever listens to other people's talk is because he knows it'll be his turn next. But the art of good conversation is waning in our country, says Dr. Henry Van Dyke, professor of English literature at Princeton. He blames, principally, fast talking.

The early white generations in America developed conversation into an art. It was a natural development. To start with, few of them could read fluently or write legibly. In remote communities, in particular, the clergyman did the writing for his flock, keeping the social records. The storekeeper and schoolmaster helped make out the business records and write the occasional letter to relatives and friends back in civilization. With writing and reading difficult, it was natural for the people to concentrate on conversation as an outlet for their craving for self-expression. Conversation became an art, despite its conventional formality.

Then, too, there were no entertainments such as radio and movies in those days. Books were scarce, newspapers and magazines few. People didn't have much to do except talk, in spare time. News and exchange of ideas had to be mostly by the talk route. Small wonder they were able to become conversational artists.

As time goes on, conversation in America is doomed steadily to become less and less, an art. Speech itself also will steadily drop out of use. This is inevitable because modern means of communication are making it easier to communicate by the eye than by the ear. Where a manager used to open the door and call out into the factory, he now turns to his stenographer or talks a "memo" into the wax-record machine. Some critics think we write too much, in average life. But they are wrong. We have to write as much as we do (nearly, at least) because we talk less.

Sympathy

A FRIEND dropped in the other day to ask if something couldn't be done about some roosters in his block that were staging a vocal competition from midnight on every day. He said he'd been driven off the sleeping porch into the house, but that even closed windows could not preserve his sleep when the roosters got really warmed up to the contest. Hopefully, he submitted a clipping which related that a Chicago judge had sentenced a noisy rooster to death on complaint of sleepless neighbors. He hadn't been able to discover if there were a similar provision in the ordinances of La Crosse, but he was looking it up—hopefully, as mentioned. We do not know what he will find in his search, but we can assure him of sympathetic popular support, in quantity, if he starts a prosecution. Roosters have their uses, but the crow, as Rostand showed in Chanticleer, is not among them. Nothing is more maddening to a tired brain seeking sleep than the raucous, intermittent bugle of the barnyard king, which seems always exactly timed to pierce and shred the mantle of sleep just as its comforting folds are about to enclose one. It may not be the legal duty of the citizen, but certainly it is the part of neighborliness to make a chicken dinner out of a bird that gets the ante-sunrise vocal itch.

The patients refused to take chloroform or any other anesthetic and sustained the shock with admirable fortitude. The score of the game was 11 to 9 in favor of the doctors but the lawyers threaten the physicians with a dose of their own medicine in a few weeks. About $35 was cleared and this will be divided among the city's three hospitals.

The Pathetic Mr. Jones

By Jessie Douglas

"You don't need to worry, Mary. He's not eligible!"

Mrs. John Warren watched the expression of relief that changed Mary Dale's face unbelievably.

"Thank goodness!" Mary sighed. "If you knew what it means to me!"

"The very sound of an eligible takes away my breath, and the sight of him taking away my speech!"

"You don't need to worry, Mary," Mrs. Warren laughed. "I know!"

Mary sat down on the four-poster bed in the guest room and smiled very charmingly.

"I know I'm hopeless. Twenty-eight and not a single beau. But I've always been that way. If I know a man's married, safely married, I can take a fancy to him, but I can't feel he's a human being, but the minute I think he's a bachelor, that he's young, good-looking, that my friends are looking at me expectantly, then everything's all up."

"That's why I asked you to this little dinner with John and me and this young fellow, the new boy in town, Mary. He married when he was very young, a wretch of a woman, and she took him a life. He never speaks about her, but he tries to be cheerful. She rose, looked into the full-length mirror at her slender figure in orange and satin and smiled to her own reflection. Mary followed her and stood a moment staring at her self too.

"It was rather a shame, she reflected, to wear a perfectly new black and silver evening frock on a poor, old married man and slippers with glittering buckles and a bandeau of silver across her dusky hair."

But she thought, if the man hadn't been married she would have been a good deal more nervous. In the spite of her twenty-eight years and the fact that she was the head secretary for the president of the Cornelia St. Yvonne club.

As she went down the hall slowly and stopped a moment at the nursery door, she saw a young man with a little white cap with his cherub face peering with sleep. Mary sighed. It was just as well to be secretary to the president, but there were other things.

Still thoughtfully, she went down the stairs admiring the mahogany banister, the beautifully decorated hall, the bow of June roses on the console table.

Mrs. Warren had John Jr. and her cousin, John, who was not to be disappointed. But she had her work. Some day she would have a way of seeming like a very dull and prosaic creature and this was one of the times.

When she crossed the threshold of the living room she found it empty, and then with a start she saw a man rise from a chair by the window—John's friend, that unfortunate Mr. Jones.

"It was the most natural thing in the world to speak to him. She found him quiet, dark, with the remarkably handsome eyes."

He bore this suffering wonderfully well, she noted, and his smile was one of the most delightful she had ever seen.

"Think the Warrens are wonderful people, don't you?" she said, with a little bit of running things. "It's always so jolly to stay with them. Are you staying long?"

"Just one day," Mary answered. "I am, too. It means everything to me to get away and not a rest."

Mary needed sympathy. She understood him. What a shame he had such an unpleasant wife!

"I don't know," she said, with a little bit of house talk. "I like to build when Mrs. Warren came in."

"Isn't it funny, Mr. Jones says he's been about the city for weeks, but he's been telling me the kind of houses, too?"

"Dinner, children," Mabel Warren said with a smile, and as she thrust her finger through her hair, she said softly: "Try to cheer him up as much as you can. Mary, make him talk, he's a little over the world and him about it and get his mind off himself."

At the pressure of her hand Mary gave her consent.

But during dinner she had very little time to talk. She and John and Mabel were held enthralled by the pathetic Mr. Jones. He told stories of Africa, where he had hunted lions, of India, where he had elephant hunted, that held their breath over the world.

Mary marvelled again at his splendid fortitude. She almost hated that wretched wife of his.

After dinner they went out into Mabel's charming strip of garden. There was a wealth of a moon and the sky was silvered over with stars, all the fragrances of June roses and pinks hugging the garden walks made the air sweet for them.

She caught Mr. Jones's eyes on her again. Once her heart stumbled in her breast when he said, "You are very lovely in this garden. Miss Dale, you're such a little young thing that you'll let me say it?"

And Mary, who was twenty-eight, knew what it was like to have the thrill of eighteen.

But she never thought of flirting with him. He was married. That settled everything for her. She listened to him eagerly and begged him to go on and asked him questions when he stopped. And after all that was the most flattering thing she could have done.

They sat at last on a garden seat with a path of moonlight streaming away before them and Mr. Jones said easily: "I believe that's the sort of life you'd like to do. Travel through the jungle. Take risks. Enjoy it and live very close to the heart of things."

"How did you know?" Mary said suddenly. "All day long I walk in a musty office and I stare out of grimy windows at roofs and buildings and that window and sometimes I think I would give anything just to see something of life."

She stopped all of a sudden. She had been talking absolutely honestly and so honestly to go back on her words—but, somehow, she had gone too far. He wasn't interested in what she wanted to do after all, or in her life. He had one woman in whom he was interested above all.

British Labor Party Big Factor

BY MILTON BRONNER

NEW Service Writer

LONDON. Because Mr. Banker, Mr. Landowner, Mr. Stockowner, Mr. Shopkeeper, Lord This and Marquis That fear plain Tom Hodge, workingman—Stanley Baldwin, new Tory premier of Great Britain, is likely to continue in office with a

Tory government for the next five years. That is the lifetime of the newly elected Parliament. And because of heretofore humble Tom Hodge, no serious effort will be made by Liberal party factions to put stones in Baldwin's path. They might not—but they DON'T want to turn him out.

They don't want another parliamentary election.

Their very good reason is that they fear Tom Hodge.

Tom might knock out all the old political parties and give Great Britain a Labor government, which would also be a Socialist government. Which is why all the great land-owning, manufacturing and merchant classes and the immense middle class unite against Labor.

Last election's vote showed that the Conservatives were really a minority party. They polled less votes than were cast for the two factions of the Liberal party and for the Labor party but when the smoke cleared away they had 344 seats in Parliament, the two Liberal segments 137 and the Labor party 135.

The Labor party is therefore "His Majesty's official opposition." In all debates on government measures it is the Labor leaders who make the first opposition speeches.

The British Tom Hodge who has brought this about is a far different person from the American John Smith. He doesn't make as much money as the American workman, he probably doesn't get as much fun out of life.

His children are not educated as well and there are not as many free amusement places for them with space for athletic games of all kinds. But the Tom Hodge is perhaps a far more powerful factor in his country's economic and political life.

As a workman, he acts through his labor union.

As a consumer of food and clothing, he deals with his co-operative society.

As a citizen, he acts through his Labor party.

And Tom Hodge, British workman, consumer, and voter, is thoroughly dissatisfied with the world he lives in. During the war, when he and his sons entered the munition factories, he heard Lloyd George, eloquently proclaim that after the world was made safe for democracy, Britain was to be made a place fit for heroes to live in.

Workers' Problems And here is what confronts Tom Hodge.

A continuous high cost of living. A taxation system that reaches down so far that it often gets him both directly and indirectly.

An economic slump that leaves him idle, working part time, or receiving reduced wages.

A country in which over 1,000,000 persons are still unemployed.

A trade-union world in which the treasuries have been depleted by unsuccessful strikes for better wages.

The pause threatened to engulf them. When she looked up she saw that he was looking down, straight into her eyes. His voice made her catch her breath.

"Suppose the Warrens have told you something about me?"

"I've only been back a little while and it's extraordinary to me to find some one so refreshingly true and simple and true. No, don't stop me," he said eagerly. "I know that I'm doing a peculiar thing telling you the first night I met you that you are the one woman."

Mary stood up. Her heart was churning terribly. Unconsciously she pressed both hands against her heart.

"But—have you forgotten your wife?" she whispered.

"Oh, you mean all that rot about my being wedded to my work? I've been an incorrigible bachelor. The Warrens told you that, I know; but, Mary, if you'll give me a chance—"

Mabel Warren was coming down the strip of moonlight toward them.

"Perhaps you don't know it, but the clock has struck one."

They rose and walked beside Mabel to the house.

"Good night, Mary," Mr. Jones said, and extended his hand, and Mary as she put hers into it knew that her heart was his, too.

But when the guest room door had closed behind them, Mabel Warren spoke breathlessly.

"I've seen love at first sight, but never such a dreadful case before! Mary Dale, I believe you knew all the time that he was the most eligible bachelor and the famous traveler and lecturer, Everett Stuart Jones!"

And in spite of her doubts, Mrs. Warren still tells the story on herself about her dearest friend who is now Mrs. Everett Stuart Jones.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Hair With

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified coconut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this cannot possibly injure the hair.

CHURCH OF CHRIST DISTRICT MEETING HELD IN VIROQUA

Southwestern District Convenes
With Viroquans During Last
Part of Week

VIROQUA, Wis.—The southwestern district convention of the Church of Christ was held here Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Delegates and ministers were in attendance from Richland Center, Soldiers Grove, Sugar Grove, Sabin, Holcomb and Readstown. A splendid program was carried out. Among the out of town speakers were: Rev. A. C. Stew. art, Readstown; Alexander McElathron, Holcomb; Mrs. A. J. Mitchell, Richland Center; Vern Kelsey, Soldiers Grove; John Babb, Sabin; R. S. Smith, Sugar Grove; W. G. Randall, Readstown, and Mr. A. J. Mitchell, Richland Center, president of the convention. On Sunday afternoon the officers for the coming year were elected as follows: President, Guy Williams, Sugar Grove; vice president, E. H. Longmire, Richland Center; treasurer, W. G. Randall, Readstown; secretary, Mrs. Will Post, Viroqua.

All is in readiness for the big Fourth of July celebration to be given in this city by the American Legion. Three big bands will furnish the music for the day and lead the way to the Veterans County Park grounds after the parade, which will consist of floats now being made by business men of the city. Viroqua's National Guard will put on a demonstration in front of the grandstand. Two big bull games will entertain the crowd in the afternoon. Attorney Emerson Eln of Madison will deliver the address of the day. Mr. Eln is the attorney for the Northern Wisconsin Tobacco Pool and has not many people here. A fifteen piece orchestra will furnish music for the pavement dance on Main street in the evening. All profits from the celebration go into the American Legion building fund.

The Redpath chautauqua opens in Viroqua on July 7, and will continue for five days. One hundred citizens of the city are sponsors for the chautauqua and tickets have been on sale for several days. The program this year includes the Di Giorgio Concert orchestra, the Laura Wernio Ladies' quartet. Among the speakers are William Rainey Bennett and Hon. C. H. Brough, former governor of Arkansas. The comedy drama "Turn to the Right" will be given by a New York cast.

At a recent meeting of the Tobacco Pool executive board it was decided to lease warehouses at La Parge, Cashron, Westby, Genoa, Du Soto, Chaseburg, Coon Valley and Independence, where local growers and business men agree to build same. Local corporations are being organized on a uniform plan prepared by Attorney Emerson Eln. Mr. John Holton, warehouse manager, visited the various places in the county last week proposing plans of warehouses that will meet the needs of the tobacco growers. The pool will lease these warehouses with option to buy.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF COMING'S CANDIDACY CAUSES STIR IN MADISON POLITICAL CIRCLES

MADISON, Wis.—By The Associated Press. Lieut. Gov. George F. Conings by announcing his candidacy for governor immediately after the wind up of Wisconsin's legislature, has created a stir in political circles here. Events of political importance are expected to follow the lead taken by the lieutenant governor, who is recognized as a leader in the La Follette Progressive movement of the state.

For some weeks senators have been expecting a break within the Progressive ranks, with a division away from Governor Elmer on the part of several leaders. They declare, however, that there was no indication of any immediate candidacy.

The lieutenant governor announces that he will open an educational campaign at once. He is expected by his friends to tour the state, directing an attack on the present administration and outlining the program which he favors for carrying into effect announced principles.

A conference of Progressive Republicans opposed to the present governor is to be called shortly after the legislature leaves, members of the opposition group say. They say that a split within the faction is inevitable as indicated by the candidacy of Lieutenant Governor Conings.

Mr. Conings has been active in Wisconsin affairs for over 22 years. He was for years a dairy farmer in Eau Claire county, and from 1909 to 1910 was a worker in the state farm institutes. The lieutenant governor served four years as a member of the state board of agriculture, and has been for five years a member of the state board of vocational education. He has served two years as lieutenant governor.

Mr. Conings is regarded as a supporter of prohibition. He urged abolition of the Wisconsin national guard during the present session of the legislature and has been identified with those proposing drastic changes in the state's tax laws.

Sees Three-sided Fight

MADISON, Wis.—The race for the governorship is going to be a three cornered fight between a stalwart

"wet" and a progressive "dry" with Gov. John J. Blaine running on an independent ticket.

This is a prediction by B. N. Hicks Wisconsin representative of the Anti-Saloon league.

Mr. Hicks stated that he believed that Blaine would not again be chosen as the progressive representative but that some "dry" candidate would take his place on the ticket. He, however, believes that Blaine will enter the race as an independent. The conservatives will be represented by some "wet", he stated.

"This has been the hardest session in the 12 years that I have worked with legislatures," Mr. Hicks commented. He added that he did not believe that the wet could get much consolation from any success that they might claim from the session.

Lieut. Gov. Conings, who announced his candidacy for governor on Monday, is assured at least partial support by the Anti-Saloon league.

Hicks asserted that the Anti-Saloon league would merely present the records of the various candidates that come out for office and would support no particular dry should there be more than one candidate with a prohibition pledge.

Puget Sound— WHERE THE Mountains meet the sea

On the shores of Puget Sound, America ends and the Orient begins. The ships come in all stained with the colors of the seven seas, and the brave young cities are ringed about with mountain crests that are touched with eternal snow. This is, indeed, the Charmed Land, and if you have never visited it, now is your opportunity.

Fares for the round trip over the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul are low this summer.

St. Paul are low this summer.

The "Milwaukee" route is northerly and cool, and through the mountains is "electrified." That famous transcontinental train, "The Olympian," carries open observation cars in summer, and your view is unobscured by cinders, smoke or soot. The entire journey is smooth and swift and fearless, over the most progressive railroad in the world.

Proportionately low excursion fares to all points West. Free descriptive booklets and full information at

LOCAL WORKER HEARS SOCIAL CONFERENCE

Miss Sempsch of the La Crosse department of public health has just returned from Milwaukee, where she attended the conference to discuss the contagious and communicable diseases.

Cooperation between parents, social workers and managers of commercial dance halls in supervising the recreation of boys and girls of high school age was urged at the informal conference of social workers in the health service building Friday afternoon. Mrs. Martha Falcovier of the American Social Hygiene association led the discussion.

"The managers of dance halls should be urged to hire a man and woman to supervise the dancing, but parents must not think their responsibility is ended until they visit the dance halls and know what conditions are for the young people of the community," said Mrs. Falcovier.

The need for women recreation officers to deal with the excess of girls and women was stressed by Mrs. Falcovier. Mrs. Falcovier, police woman of Madison, and Mrs. McNell, Kenosha police woman, outlined the case, which need the point of view of a woman.

"The police woman movement in the large cities of the United States is not a fact, but a realization on the part of mothers of daughters that women and girls should be supervised by a woman," Mrs. Falcovier said.

A trip through the social disease clinic of the county dispensary was made Friday night under the direction of Dr. John P. Kechler, dispensary chief.

SENTENCED TO JAIL AFTER WILD TRIP IN AUTO AT WINONA

WINONA, Minn.—Martha Falcovier, 25 years old, was sentenced by Judge J. J. Fitzpatrick in municipal court to serve 30 days in the Winona county jail, following an escapade Saturday night when Falcovier, after driving up West Broadway at a speed of 45 miles an hour, arrested from one side of the street to the other, and passing a score of other machines, came to an abrupt halt as his car crashed into a telephone pole at the end of the thoroughfare.

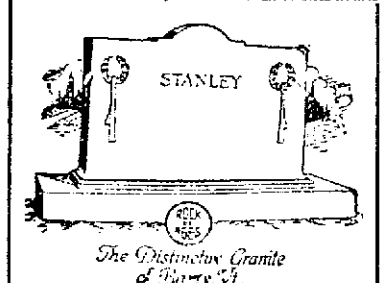

Falcovier, whose machine was badly damaged although he escaped injury, pleaded guilty to charges both of driving an automobile while intoxicated and at an unreasonable rate of speed.

WYEVILLE TO VOTE ON VILLAGE PLANS TUESDAY, JULY 24

TOMAH, Wis.—Plans for the formation of the village of Wyeville, Monroe county, which have been under consideration for several months, have taken definite shape and are being pushed by the residents of that wide-awake community. On May 21 Judge Higbee signed an order granting the petition for holding an election on the question of incorporating the village, said election to be held within sixty days from the date of the order. All preliminary steps required have been taken and the date of the election is set for July 24. Wyeville is an important point on the Northwestern railroad, the round-house and shops for this division being there located. It is at present a part of the town of Byron and is growing steadily. Local improvements are now demanded by the community, such as cannot be obtained under town government. It is expected that the proposition to make Wyeville a village will be carried by a large majority.

PLAYGROUNDS NOW KEEPING CHILDREN BUSY

WHAT to do with the boy and girl during the summer vacation is again a La Crosse problem. Play is the thing, but left to themselves children do not always find the best forum of play. Playfields are answering the problem.

La Crosse has four large playgrounds especially for summer recreation. The playgrounds are the Hixon field at Fifteenth and Madison streets, the West avenue playground at Twelfth and Jackson streets, the Hood street playground at Fifth and Hood streets, and Copeland playground, at Copeland park on the north side.

The people in charge of these playgrounds this summer are:

Hixon: Miss Lottie Hixcox and Mark Peterman.

West avenue: Miss Anne Turek and Max Pasover.

Hood street: Miss Maude Jarvis and T. Turek.

Copeland park: Miss Caroline Turek and William Riess.

At the playgrounds the workers supervise group games, handicraft, baseball, volleyball, races and many other games. The workers are on duty from 2 to 5 in the afternoon and from 7 to 9 in the evening.

Natives of the Pig Islands build substantial buildings and decorate them attractively.

Sunburn

EVEN the most severe cases of sunburn are speedily relieved by the use of Resinol Ointment. Its cooling touch quickly allays the pain, and reduces inflammation and soreness as it hastens the return of the skin to its normal condition.

Resinol Ointment is also invaluable for insect bites, ivy or oak poisoning, heat rash, etc. Easy and pleasant to apply and so nearly flesh colored it can be used on exposed surfaces without attracting undue attention. It is even more effective if aided by Resinol Soap.

Your druggist sells the Resinol products. Keep them on hand for skin trouble of summer.

COMMITTEE TO LAY OUT 2,500 MILES OF NEW HIGHWAYS

Program Financed by Weight Tax Bill Will Bring Trunk Highway Mileage to 10,000

MADISON, Wis.—The legislative highway committee will soon begin its work of laying out 2,500 miles of additional state trunk highways provided for in the automobile weight tax bill passed by the legislature. This program will bring the total length of state trunk roads to 10,000 miles.

Senator George Staudenmayer, Portage, a supporter of Governor John Blaine, will probably head this committee.

Senator Staudenmayer has held closer connection with the development of Wisconsin's highways than probably any other member of the legislature. He was a member of the committee on education and public welfare and also a member of the joint committee on finance.

Counties of Columbia, Richland and Sauk are represented in the senate by Senator Staudenmayer. The senator was elected to the senate in 1914 as a Democrat and in 1918 he was re-elected from the same district as a Republican.

Senator Staudenmayer started his political career as a member of the legislature. He has worked at both the vocations of farming and thresherman.

MOVIES

"SLANDER THE WOMAN"
A woman sacrificed upon the altar of man's selfish ambition. This is the central theme of "Slander the Woman," with Dorothy Phillips in the stellar role, which will be shown at the Rivoli Theatre for three days, beginning Thursday.

The story of the plot is laid in Canada. The woman, Yvonne Desmarest, portrayed by Dorothy Phillips, becomes involved in a murder through no fault of her own. At the trial Judge Durocher presides. He is a candidate at the forthcoming parliamentary election and he sees in the trial an opportunity to win popularity through branding Mlle. Desmarest as "the other woman." The widow of the man killed is acquitted of the crime, and Yvonne is socially ostracized. With stirring effect the story tells how Yvonne makes a winning fight for justice.

"THE SIN FLOOD"
There is every evidence that "The Sin Flood," which will be shown at the Majestic Theatre for three days, beginning Thursday, is a photoplay that will confirm the belief that a picture with a genuine idea has come to town.

The author has placed a number of quarreling people in a threatening situation, where their thoughts are forced into spiritual channels. At once a brotherhood comes into being. All quarrels are forgotten. For the people concerned, there are no more struggles of the flesh. They believe that God has united them.

The weakness of their resolution is shown when they realize that their expected doom has been averted. It is pitiful, but human, that high promises should mean so little in the face of the world. Yet the contrast of character with character, the struggle of evil against evil, and the vindication of good for itself alone, as exemplified in three of the characters, makes "The Sin Flood" a remarkable production.

HERE'S ONE ACTOR WHO LIKES CRITICS

Brandon Tynan, the celebrated stage star who appears in the leading role in the Metro picture, "Success," at the Casino Theatre Thursday, is a friend of the critics. He believes that few people realize the difficulties and hardships which are part of the lot of a reviewer on any of the large metropolitan newspapers. In his opinion, many persons who condemn critics as unkind would themselves be less kind if their positions were reversed.

"It is human nature, of course, to feel adverse criticism," said Mr. Ty-in life, is one that permitted Mr. Xyne to weave a story about two New York households, one in a poverty-stricken flat, the other in a gilded Riverside Drive apartment house, that lent itself to veracious comedy treatment.

The vein of comedy, tapped early in the first reel, yields excellent tonnage of laughter until the final foot of the last reel. But there is a substratum of powerful drama in "Brothers Under the Skin," which makes of it more than merely fine screen entertainment.

The cast is a perfect one—the five principal characters being acted by Helene Chadwick and Pat O'Malley (as the poor married couple); by Claire Windsor and Norman Kerry (as the wealthy pair); and by Mae Busch as the inevitable divorcee to be found in every apartment house in New York.

"GARRISON'S FINISH"
Jack Pickford has returned to screen stardom in "Garrison's Finish," which opened a three-day engagement at the Rivoli Theatre yesterday and a large audience made known its full approval in unmistakable applause. It is certain everyone liked Jack in the role of a dashing, debonaire jockey. He ingratiated himself most decidedly in his natural romancing with Madge Bellamy, leading woman, who proves an excellent foil. Besides, he gave several occasions for genuine thrills in some of the more exciting scenes.

"Garrison's Finish" is an intensely interesting story of the race-track and racing.

The supporting cast is especially good. In addition to an outstanding performance of merit by Miss Bellamy, there are excellent characterizations by Clarence Burton, Charles Ogle, Charles A. Stevenson, Ethel Grey Terry, Audrey Chapman, and Dorothy Manners.

BLAZING AUTO AT ANTIGO
ANTIGO, Wis.—The emergency brake on the automobile of Warren Hill got hot and started to smoke. He ran into a garage to get a pail of water. An employee pointed out a can which he took. The can contained not water, but gasoline, and as soon as he threw it on the car it blazed up. The fire department arrived in time to put out the fire before it did great damage.
